DRASTIC BOOST IN TAXES TO FACE THE NATION NEXT YEAR

Talk Now Heard in Washington of Attempt to Revive General Sales Levy

BILLION DOLLAR DEFICIT

Roosevelt's Promise of a Balanced Budget by 1935 Going Overboard

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—On the first scattered reports of what the Federal departments and agencies will require in the next fiscal year a projected budget deficit approaching $1,000,000,000 in connection even with a comparatively favorable view of future business conditions is receiving administration attention.

With the alternative being such drastic taxation as was imposed at the close of the World War, or perhaps still more severe levies, as well as a slashing of the new Government agencies, President Roosevelt was reported to be leaning toward a postponement of a balanced budget for another year, despite the commitments he made in his budget message of last January. At that time, the President, announcing an 18-month spending program for recovery purposes, planned a balanced budget with no increase in the public debt for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935.

The failure of private business to maintain a consistently upward trend, the prolongation and increase of the burden of unemployment, the probable necessity of continuing emergency activities of the Government and the assumption next winter of new social program obligations have now induced reconsideration of the administration's original plans. It was indicated in authoritative quarters today.

The Treasury, now in full command of the budget bureau, is considering a new tax program to present to the next Congress to offset the potential continuance of emergency expenditures. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, has had experts studying in England the income system there and has directed the more general tax studies of another committee working under Dr. Jacob Viner, University of Chicago professor who is special assistant to Mr. Morgenthau and consulting economist.

On Capitol Hill there is some discussion of reviving the general sales tax, defeated by the last Congress, to replace the so-called nuisance taxes. However, it is conceded administration approval would be essential to passage.

Although a $500,000,000 tax bill under administration auspices to replace or extend levies expiring July 1 next is taken to be inevitable, the amount of new and additional revenue which the tax program will provide is not yet determined. At the Treasury it was stated that it is still too early to formulate tax plans.

From all indications, however, the President and Secretary Morgenthau are leaning away from any such taxes as would boost the revenue estimates by $1,000,000,000 or anything approximating that amount. The course now being projected is to start trimming expenditures and increasing taxes in the next fiscal year, but to acknowledge that a nearer view of the situation requires a delay of an actual balance until the fiscal year, commencing July 1, 1936.

In addition, the President's two-year budget covered in detail in his budget message last January and providing for expenditures in the period from July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1935, is slated to be altered by additional emergency requests to Congress for funds to be expended in the final months of the present fiscal year. The two year budget has already been changed once by the addition of the $25,000,000 drought relief fund in the closing days of the last Congress.

Expenditures under the two-year budget program have not proceeded as rapidly as was planned, but the commitments have been made and merely the exact date of carrying them out has been delayed. Thus the $29,255,000,000 increase in the public debt which the President projected in his January budget message for the two-year period will not only be realized under the present schedule, but will be boosted by the amount of the drought fund and whatever deficiency appropriations may be asked of the next Congress to complete the present fiscal year. The latter are expected to include $500,000,000 for relief, since the present relief funds will be exhausted at the end of January. The continuation of the Civilian Conservation Corps after its present authorization of life, which expires March 31, will be among the other appropriation necessities.

On the tax side the administration, it was indicated today, will have little to say until late in this calendar year. The so-called Liberal wing of the White House advisers are known to be urging that another year of an unbalanced budget will do no great harm, as long as the recovery processes proceed, but they would not be adverse to a tax program which emphasizes MORRISVILLE, Sept. 5.—Supervising Principal Manoh R. Reiter, of the public schools, held a faculty meeting at 1:30 yesterday in the Robert Morris high school building.

Plans for the coming school year were discussed in preparation for the opening of the local schools today.

There will be six new teachers in the school system for the 1934-35 term. Three of these are in the high school, with the remaining three in the grades.

HEREAFTER HE'LL READ HIS MAIL

(By "The Stroller") There is a certain man in Hulmeville who doesn't believe in reading his mail—and the habit of tossing letters and cards aside didn't work out so well last week.

It happened this way: The sister of the man in question sent him a card from a seaside resort. Little attention was paid to the message, and that evening upon retiring the man of the house dutifully left a light burning, and the door unlocked, so the vacationist could easily get in the premises upon her return.

About three a. m., the man awakened with a start. "Humm! The light's still burning," he mumbled to himself. Then upon investigation he found his sister not yet home, and of course the door still unlocked.

A thought struck him. He had better look at that post-card. Perhaps she wasn't coming home just yet. A careful reading of the card proved it was sent with the specific object of informing the brother that the vacationist would not be home until the following day.

"OPEN DOOR" SLAMS SHUT AT GATE TO MANCHUKUO, SAYS CORRESPONDENT IN WRITING ABOUT 900-MILE JOURNEY

Ordered to Leave Truck at the Point of a Revolver

NO MILITARY PERMIT

Complete Copies Are Made of Letter Which He Had

(The following is the second of a series of articles on a 900-mile journey through Manchukuo by John Goette, Peiping correspondent of International News Service.)

By John Goette
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

KOUPEIKOU, Sept. 5.—(INS)—Despite the fact that I was an American citizen armed with letters from the Japanese military attaché in Peiping, as well as the fact that the pass in the Great Wall known as Koupeikou, was retroceded to China several weeks before, I found the "Open Door" slammed in my face.

The Japanese operated truck in which I rode the 75 miles from Peiping to Koupeikou was brought up short outside the gate through the Great Wall. The Manchukuo policeman, a Japanese armed with a revolver, ordered me to leave the truck and my luggage and accompany him to headquarters. I was taken into a room where sat six Japanese all in lavender undershirts and bedroom slippers.

On the wall was a photograph of the Japanese emperor, but none of Emperor Henry Pu Yi. The Japanese paid no attention to me as they listened to the story of the now outraged frontier official for whom I would not leave my transportation. My letter from Peiping was read, then copied word for word, although it was not addressed to this office.

Next I was asked if I spoke the Manchukuo language. I replied in Chinese, which was what they meant. They told me that since I had no "ming ling," official military pass, I could not enter Manchukuo, although six miles back I had been solemnly advised by a Japanese policeman that I already was in the new empire.

For nearly an hour I argued with the undershirted Japanese that there was no way in Peiping to obtain a military pass but that the letter asked that one be supplied when I reached Koupeikou. These policemen told me that it was none of the business of the Japanese diplomats or army in Peiping. This was Manchukuo and they were Manchukuo police.

At that point I turned oriental and just sat. A Chinese brought me tea, the only bit of friendly treatment I received while in this office. This passive resistance eventually wore them down, and I was handed my letter and escorted to the truck. No policeman followed me.

At the truck, a Japanese interpreter speaking English, picked me up and asked me to go to the official to whom my letter was addressed. There I was in the hands of the Kwangtung Army and treatment changed one hundred per cent.

My name and age was again written

CAR WRECKER DESTROYED BY FIRE ON BATH ROAD

Machine Set Fire by Sparks From Friction of Other Wrecker's Wheels

TURNED OVER ON CURVE

An automobile wrecker was destroyed by fire at four o'clock this morning on the Bath Road at the "S" curve, Laurel Bend. It was the machine of Nick Caster, Lincoln Highway, South Langhorne.

The wrecker along with another wrecker was proceeding along the Bath Road in answer to a call. A driver was at the wheel and it is believed that he failed to notice the sharp curve at this point. The machine turned over.

The second wrecker and crew was placing the machine back on the road, when it is thought that sparks created by friction of the chains of the wheels of the wrecker pulling the overturned machine to an upright position ignited gasoline on the road spilled from the tank of the wrecked machine.

The entire machine was enveloped in flames and burned rapidly. Newportville and Newport fire companies responded.

AWAIT LEGISLATURE CALL

Harrisburg, Sept. 5.—Frankly uncertain over its scope, political leaders and legislators today awaited anxiously Governor Pinchot's formal proclamation calling the Legislature into session next Wednesday noon.

The preponderance of hope lay in a brief call limiting the session to the immediate crisis, unemployment relief, but the Democrats lead those advocating a "wide open" proclamation including the welter of social welfare and labor topics for which they claim a forum is needed.

Sources close to the chief executive indicated a decision on the scope of the call was yet to be made. The Governor's only public statement has been that if forced to summon the Legislature, he would "give the people their money's worth" by including a wide variety of subjects for consideration.

Since then there have been indications the executive is irked over the Democratic refusal to attempt to reach a compromise settlement of the relief impasse and that he may sharply limit the call.

Advancing the date for convening the Legislature to Wednesday because of the Jewish New Year holiday on Monday and Tuesday, gives the Governor additional time for studying the wording of his call.

Seizing upon this postponement, proponents of both a brief and unlimited proclamation lost no time in seeking out the Governor to present their arguments.

Within the ranks of the Governor's coterie of advisors, the clamor for a "wide-open" summons comes from thickly populated industrial districts.

Two Injured in Crash On Highway at Fallsington

Two Trenton men suffered severe injuries last night in an automobile accident on the Lincoln Highway near Fallsington.

Henry L. Stone, 6 Sanhican Drive, suffered several fractured ribs, and Richard Stinson, R. F. D. No. 6, riding with Stone, sustained a fractured collarbone.

Stinson is being held at Mercer Hospital for observation. Stone was released after treatment.

The mishap occurred, Highway Patrolman Diem reported, when Stone, while passing a car driven by Harry W. Hauck, of New York City, suddenly cut in front of Hauck's car in an effort to cross to a service station on the right hand side of the highway.

Stone's car was struck on the side by Hauck's machine, hurling Stinson to the road and jamming Stone against his own steering wheel. Hauck escaped injury. Both cars were badly damaged. No arrests were made.

WOMAN, 35, GUILTY OF LIQUOR VIOLATION

Miss Jeanne Steele, Hotel Owner's Daughter, Sentenced to Pay Fines

JAIL TERM SUSPENDED

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 5.—Miss Jeanne Steele, 35, daughter of a former Easton hotel owner, pleaded guilty in the Bucks County Court here yesterday to several counts on a charge of violating the state liquor laws.

She was sentenced by President Judge Hiram H. Keller to pay two fines of $50 to the county, and pay the costs, on which condition sentence was suspended. The defendant was given ten days time to pay one fine and 60 days in which to pay the balance.

The Court ruled out a charge of selling beer without a license but accepted pleas on charges of unlawful possession of liquor and unlawful sale of liquor.

Miss Steele operates "The Dutch Kitchen," at Revere, Nockamixon township. Her place was visited on May 31 by State Liquor Enforcement Officer W. E. Portzline and Constable A. R. Atkinson, of Doylestown. The officers testified that they bought beer and some highballs. On June 4, another visit was made and a private citizen of Doylestown, Frank James, was taken along to "make a buy," Officer Portzline testified.

The Court ruled that owing to the fact that Miss Steele had a beer license, she could not be held on the malt liquor charge.

On the witness stand, Miss Steele admitted that she had purchased moonshine whiskey from a man from Sellersville or Perkasie, and that she had been selling it for several months. She said that the officers did take a quantity of wine that was her "private stock."

The defendant's attorney informed the Court that Miss Steele's physical condition would not stand a prison sentence. Letters referring to Miss Steele's good reputation written by former Mayor S. S. Horn, of Easton, and Judge McKean, of Easton, were read by Miss Steele's attorney.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Keller said that the Court would take the defendant's physical condition into consideration, but warned her that if she ever got into court again on a similar charge she would have to go to prison. The Court also warned her that she was not immune from losing her beer license. She was the third Bucks county defendant brought into court for violating the new state liquor laws.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holsneck, Otter street, were guests for the past few days of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Holsneck, Elizabeth, N. J.

Three wrecks on the Pennsylvania's New York division in less than 24 hours has kept wrecking crews working day and night so as to delay traffic as little as possible.

The first wreck occurred two miles east of here yesterday at 11:41 daylight time and this morning, early, two wrecks occurred four hours apart at virtually the same spot at Morrisville.

Passenger and freight traffic along the line was tied-up for hours.

Four freight cars of a train of 39, bound from Jersey City to Philadelphia, jumped the track at West Morrisville, in the early morning hours. Passenger trains were delayed from four to 50 minutes, in some cases. No one was injured.

Less than 100 yards away, eight freight cars were derailed a few hours later. The cars which were being drawn to Edgemont, Del., from Jersey City, fell across the adjoining tracks, necessitating rerouting of several passenger trains on the Philadelphia to New York run. Railroad officials declared no one was injured in either crash. Cause of the twin derailment was undetermined.

Two of those injured here yesterday were reported in a serious condition this morning at St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J. They are: Miss Lillian Babus, 24, Brooklyn, suffering with a fractured shoulder and possible internal injuries; and C. F. Sakker, a railroad mail clerk.

According to a complete tabulation of the persons injured in the wreck of train 122, a 13-car Washington to New York express, here, yesterday at 11:41, a total of 24 persons were examined and treated for injuries. Seventeen of this number were examined and treated by physicians who boarded the train at New Brunswick and Trenton after they had resumed their journey. Three were treated at St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, and four were given aid at the wreck scene.

The exact cause of the wreck has not as yet been determined but all agree that it was fortunate that the four wrecked coaches broke away from the other nine or there would have been serious consequences. The rail which curled up into a loop was one of the curiosities of the accident.

Wrecking crews worked throughout the afternoon and cleaned up the debris. A crowd of spectators was at the scene and railroad police and Bristol police guarded a mail car in which it was reported there was considerable valuable mail. The nine coaches and electric locomotive continued the trip at 12:46 p. m.

Bristol physicians including Dr. George T. Fox, Dr. H. Doyle Webb and Dr. William C. LeCompte were on duty, as were also physicians from St. Francis Hospital, Trenton.

Three of the injured were taken to St. Francis Hospital, Trenton. They are: Miss Lillian Babus, 24, of Brooklyn, internal injuries and possible shoulder fracture; William E. Fowler, 51, of 324 Commonwealth avenue, Trenton, railway mail clerk, bruises, and Oscar Sakker, 26, of 29 Fitzrandolph avenue, Trenton, mail clerk, contusions of right hip. Miss Babus was kept at the hospital.

CHALLENGE BRAIN TRUST

Announcement of plans for the immediate construction of a factory in the South for the manufacture of wood pulp from slash pine indicates that Southern capitalists refuse to be dictated to by members of the administration Brain Trust.

The discovery of methods of converting slash pine, of which the South has large supplies, into newsprint, provided the opportunity for a new industry in Dixie. But while publishers and others were hailing the outlook, Professor Mordecai Ezekiel, a Brain Trustee, arose to throw water on the proposal. The development of a wood-pulp industry in the South, he declared, would prove injurious to America's foreign trade.

Most of the newsprint consumed here is purchased abroad, a great part of it coming from Canada. Dr. Ezekiel feared that if this buying should stop Canada would reduce its purchases in the United States.

Even though this should prove to be the case, should it prevent Americans from launching a new industry which would keep at home money formerly spent abroad for newsprint and at the same time give employment to large numbers of Americans? It also would prove profitable to farmers upon whose land slash pine grows. It would give these an additional source of income from a commodity that formerly had been of little value to them.

Southerners apparently were not greatly impressed by Dr. Ezekiel's argument. Nor do they appear unreasonable in not being. They are determined to take advantage of the opportunity presented for developing a new large industry in their section of the country. They can not be blamed for doing this.

About $170,000,000 now is sent abroad annually for newsprint. Keeping this amount at home, alone means much in a business way.

NO WHEAT EXPORTS

For 13 years American wheat exports have averaged 180,000,000 bushels a year. This year the international wheat conference allotted the United States 15,000,000 bushels of export business.

Bitter would have been the protest against such a puny outlet had there been any wheat in the States to sell abroad, therefore it is conducive to the peace of the world that the drought converted many American wheat patches into deserts. All the farmer has to worry about this year is that he doesn't have those 15,000,000 bushels to sell.

Entirely out of the world wheat market this year, the United States must see to it that it is not permanently out. Normal rainfall and irrigation will win back the new deserts in the West and bring grain production up to normal, at which time there will be 180,000,000 bushels of wheat hunting foreign markets.

Farming has become one everlasting nightmare not only for the farmer but for the government, and it is not one of those nightmares which can be obliterated by the votes of 36 states.

But now the sun never sets on English markets being grabbed up by Japs.

You can tell by looking back. If the air is full of feathers, it wasn't a pedestrian.

What does it take TO SATISFY?

Has Chesterfield got it?

A Fair Question and a Fair Answer

For a Cigarette to Satisfy—

It must have the right kind of tobaccos.
We honestly believe that the tobaccos used in CHESTERFIELD cigarettes are of better quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

It must be made right; uniform, well-filled—no particles of tobacco getting into your mouth; no hard and soft places.

It must have the right flavor and aroma—
the right amount of aromatic Turkish.

It must reach you just as fresh as if you passed by the factory door.

CHESTERFIELD has what it takes to satisfy. Just try them.

They have what it Takes to Satisfy—Just Try them!
